Black Bear Hunting in the "Chic-Chocs Wildlife Reserve"

A unique horseback hunting experience

Land of mountains

Located in magnificent Gaspé Peninsula region, the Chic-Chocs Wildlife Reserve is part of the network of government wildlife reserves. It was established in 1949 to create a buffer zone around Gaspé Conservation Park where an exceptional array of wildlife habitats is preserved. The high number of black bears compromises the survival of the Caribou herd of this provincial Park. These animals are predators of young caribous in springtime. Bear hunting is therefore an appropriate way to preserve our unique caribou herd.
