This sea of glacier-chiselled mountains is festooned with stone fields, high plateaus, ridges, and deep valleys whose wildlife and flora recall the Far North.

Parc national de la Gaspésie is an exceptional hiking destination in Quebec. It was established in 1937 to permanently protect the endangered Gaspésie caribou; to preserve the beauty of Mont Albert, the McGerrigle mountains, and the Rivière Sainte-Anne salmon; and to promote the development of tourism in the Gaspésie region.

The park’s high-altitude peaks have a significant effect on local climate and landscape, giving rise to a rich diversity of species unique to Québec—and even the world. Arctic-alpine plants and tundra landscapes are the preferred habitat of the park’s herds of caribou, which represents the last of their species south of the Fleuve Saint-Laurent.

Immoderation greets the eye in all directions.

BOAT RENTAL

Treat yourself to an outing on the park’s longest lake, Lake Cascapédia. From June 19 to September 7, explore the wild shores of Lake Cascapédia, a good place to spot moose, on one of our boats:

- Canoe: a fast boat suitable for long trips. Also great for transporting loads, such as a picnic lunch.
- Single or tandem recreational kayak, or single sea kayak: These boats are stable and easy to steer. Perfect for hot summer days.
- Stand up paddle board: Standing on a large surfboard, paddle in hand, will test your balancing skills. It’s quick and easy to learn and fun is guaranteed!
- Pedal boats: Pedal boats can help create unforgettable family memories. Pedal hard or meander slowly around the lake.

If you have your own boat, you can explore other lakes. Visit Lake Paul or Lake Claude to check out the park’s typical landscapes.

SINGLE-DAY FISHING

Day fishing is available on four lakes and three rivers. The main species caught in these waters are brook trout and Arctic char.

Don’t forget to get your provincial fishing licence and fishing access permit online or at one of our visitors’ centres.

At the end of each fishing day, you must report your day’s catch at a centre, where there is a terminal provided for that purpose. Monitoring catches is essential for the sustainable management of fisheries.

WE'RE RESTORING THE HOME OF THE CARIBOU

Caribou are known to be highly sensitive to habitat disturbance. They are considered bellwethers of the health of the boreal forest. Over the years, the forest has become younger and more fragmented, changing the habitat and making it more suitable for other species, particularly coyotes and black bears. A major road closure project was initiated in 2017 and will be completed in 2020. No fewer than 35,000 trees will be planted to restore a portion of the caribou’s home.

To find out more about this conservation initiative, visit the video section of our website (sepaq.com/gaspesie).

EFFECTIVE ACTION?

Habitat preservation is widely acknowledged to be the key to the survival of endangered species. To find out whether efforts to restore the habitat of the Gaspésie caribou are truly effective, a monitoring program has been developed and implemented in 2018. Seventy-five surveillance cameras are located throughout the park’s territory to keep track of how the restored and unrestored roads are being used, particularly by predators of the caribou.

Predation of caribou calves by coyotes and black bears is the direct cause of the Gaspésie caribou’s decline.
TIMES CHANGE…
AND SO DO VALUES!

Since 1937, the park has seen its array of outdoor activities change according to trends and interests. In 1971, lake trout was introduced into Lac Thibault to enhance the fishing experience, as this species was in high demand at the time. Today, this strong competitor is a threat to the native Arctic char population. The knowledge acquisition work carried out in 2018 confirms the importance of this conservation issue at the Parc national de la Gaspésie.

As a follow-up to the work carried out in 2018, genetic analyses are underway to decipher the genome of the park’s Arctic char populations likely to be designated as threatened.

A UNIQUE TERRITORY

Designating areas as protected is a societal choice. In Quebec, the Parks Act made it possible for the government to establish the Parc national de la Gaspésie. This territory, which is representative of the interior of the Gaspé Peninsula, has also revealed itself to be a unique territory as our knowledge has improved over the years. The landscapes, flora and fauna are peculiar to the area, and sometimes even unique in the world. Compliance with the laws and regulations governing activities in parks is also a societal responsibility. Thank you for ensuring that this fabulous treasure remains intact for our children.

Respecting the laws and regulations when you visit the park to experience the wonders of nature is all you need to do to help achieve the conservation mission of this exceptional area.

MONT ALBERT: WORLD RENOWNED

The sequence of geological strata that make up Mont Albert is among the most complete and best preserved of all the Appalachians. According to experts in Earth’s internal structure, Mont Albert, thanks to the remarkable preservation of its geological formations and the quality of its exposure, is as much a world-renowned geological treasure as the Oman Cultural Complex in the Arabian Peninsula.

To better grasp the true worth of this treasure, all you have to do is reach Mont Albert’s peak and take part in the Terre de contraste activity.

Sépaq’s mission is to ensure the widest possible access to Québec’s most beautiful natural treasures. Sépaq is committed to the safety of its visitors and urges you to play it safe!

Preparing yourself adequately is the first step in the safe and enjoyable practice of your favourite activities. YOU ARE RESPONSIBLE FOR YOUR OWN SAFETY and risk management is an integral part of your experience.

Before leaving for an excursion, MAKE SURE YOU HAVE THE SKILLS AND ABILITIES REQUIRED to practice your chosen activity AND RESPECT YOUR PHYSICAL LIMITS. Your outing should leave you with nothing but pleasant memories. We invite you to consult our safety guides for Sépaq activities, available at sepaq.com/security. You will also find a list of organizations that can help you plan your activities safely.
